REFLECTIONS FOR EASTER DAY

Lead Me to The Cross

by Janet Martin

Across the darkened plains of woe
A Voice rings, "God, forgive
What they do, how can they know?"
Because He died, I live

The hand that touched and healed
the weak
Is pierced with cruel nail Yet love pours from each word He speaks
"Oh, Father, not my will"

The arms that drew the children near
Are spread in agony
And from his eyes flow holy tears
As Jesus dies for me

Here is the perfect Son of God
Beneath man's heartless blows
As earth receives redemption's flood
In colours of the rose

And as the scarlet blood-drops fall
The seed of hope is born Amazing grace for one and all
From limbs so bruised and torn

Lead me to the blood-stained cross Pour out my sin and pride
All that I give is counted loss
As I see him who died

Lead me to the arms of love
Where freely He forgives
And seals my place in Heaven above
Because He died, I live!

BECAUSE HE DIED, I LIVE!

A Prayer

by Rev. Brian McLaren

Living God, the risen Christ is on the move among us, but often we don't recognize him.

Like Mary Magdalene, we weep by the tomb, interpreting events in their worst possible light, until we hear the risen one call our name.

Like the men walking to Emmaus, we think the bad guys have won, until we see Jesus alive in the breaking of the bread.

Like the disciples on the beach, we go back to our old lives of fishing, while the risen Christ is on the beach making a fire for a breakfast we're about to catch.

Like Saul of Tarsus, we blindly surge forward doing our religious duty - even when it includes religious violence - until an unrecognized voice arrests us on the road, and when we ask, "Who are you, Lord?" we hear the answer:
"Jesus, the one you are persecuting."

So now, where we face disappointment, discouragement, lack of faith or hope, or lack of conscience ... we open ourselves this Easter morning to discover that you are already here, unrecognized.

Today, may we once again hear our name, recognize Christ in the breaking of bread, cast our nets again, and know the good news that the Lord is risen indeed. Alleluia!"
